Ibuprofen works by blocking the production of prostaglandins, which are chemicals that cause pain, fever, and inflammation. Prostaglandins are also involved in protecting the stomach lining, so ibuprofen can cause stomach bleeding if it is taken in high doses or for a long period of time.

Ibuprofen is effective in treating a wide range of conditions, including:

- Headaches
- Back pain
- Arthritis

- Menstrual cramps
- Fever
- Inflammation

Ibuprofen is generally safe to take, but it can cause some side effects, including:

- Stomach upset
- Nausea
- Vomiting
- Diarrhea
- Headache
- Dizziness
- Drowsiness

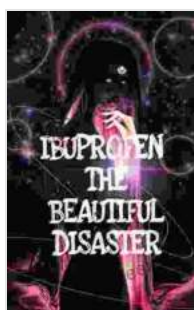

Ibuprofen can also cause more serious side effects, including:

- Stomach bleeding
- Heart attack
- Stroke

The risk of serious side effects from ibuprofen is increased in people who are over the age of 65, who have a history of heart disease, or who take other medications that can increase the risk of bleeding.

If you are considering taking ibuprofen, it is important to talk to your doctor about the risks and benefits. Ibuprofen should not be taken by people who are allergic to it or who have a history of stomach ulcers or bleeding.

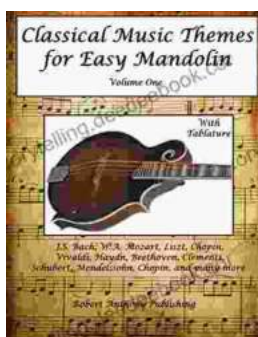

Ibuprofen is a powerful medication that can be effective in treating a wide range of conditions. However, it is important to be aware of the potential side effects before taking ibuprofen. If you have any concerns about the risks of ibuprofen, talk to your doctor.
