Scriptural Interpretation: Unlocking the Word of God

Charles Sid Heal believed that the Bible was the infallible Word of God, a divinely inspired revelation that holds the ultimate authority in matters of faith and practice. His approach to scriptural interpretation was characterized by a meticulous attention to the original languages, historical context, and literary genre. By examining the Bible in its original context, he sought to uncover the true meaning intended by its authors.

Heal emphasized the importance of a literal and grammatical interpretation of Scripture, believing that the words of the Bible should be understood at face value unless there was a clear indication that they were to be taken figuratively. This approach allowed him to draw out the plain meaning of the text without resorting to allegorical or spiritualizing interpretations that could obscure its true message.

Biblical Authority: The Unwavering Foundation of Faith

The cornerstone of Charles Sid Heal's theology was his unwavering belief in the absolute authority of the Bible. He taught that the Bible is the final and supreme authority for all matters of faith and practice, superseding any tradition, creed, or human opinion. He argued that the authority of the Bible is derived from its divine origin, being the inspired Word of God.

Heal recognized the importance of tradition and the writings of the church fathers, but he insisted that they should never be placed on par with the authority of the Bible. He believed that all teachings, practices, and beliefs must be measured against the standard of Scripture to ensure their faithfulness to the truth revealed in God's Word.

The Nature of Salvation: Grace and Responsibility

Charles Sid Heal's understanding of salvation was rooted in the belief that it was a gift of God's grace, received through faith in Jesus Christ. He emphasized that salvation is not something that can be earned or achieved through human merit, but rather it is a free gift offered by God to all who repent of their sins and trust in Christ as their Savior.

However, Heal also recognized that salvation involves a responsible response from the believer. He taught that true faith must be accompanied by obedience to God's commands and a commitment to living a holy life. He believed that salvation is not merely a passive acceptance of grace, but an active participation in God's plan for redemption.
