The Peacekeeper Enneagram personality type is one of the most common types, making up about 7% of the population. Peacekeepers are known for their ability to get along with everyone and their desire to avoid conflict. They are often seen as the glue that holds groups together.

Key Characteristics of Peacekeepers

- Peaceful and harmonious
- Avoid conflict at all costs
- Supportive and nurturing
- Loyal and committed
- People-pleasers

Strengths of Peacekeepers

Peacekeepers have many strengths that make them valuable members of any team or group. These strengths include:

- Their ability to get along with everyone
- Their ability to avoid conflict
- Their supportive and nurturing nature
- Their loyalty and commitment
- Their people-pleasing skills

Weaknesses of Peacekeepers

While Peacekeepers have many strengths, they also have some weaknesses. These weaknesses include:

- Their tendency to avoid conflict can lead to them bottling up their emotions
- Their people-pleasing skills can lead them to put the needs of others before their own
- Their desire for harmony can lead them to stay in unhealthy relationships or situations

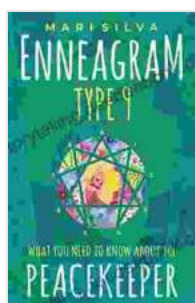

How to Get Along with Peacekeepers

If you want to get along with a Peacekeeper, it is important to understand their strengths and weaknesses. Here are some tips:

- Be respectful of their need for peace and harmony

- Avoid conflict if possible
- Be supportive and nurturing
- Be loyal and committed
- Don't try to take advantage of their people-pleasing nature

Peacekeepers are a valuable part of any team or group. They are peaceful, harmonious, and supportive. However, it is important to understand their strengths and weaknesses in order to get along with them effectively.
